DANDELIONS

Dandelions are a common weed that appear mostly in spring and then again in the fall. A single plant can be a continual source of infestation as more flowers mature. To discourage seeds from sprouting, promote heavier grass growth by conscientious fertilizing and mowing at the high end of the height range for your grass.

DIVERSIFY YOUR PORTFOLIO

When market conditions change, different investment classes — like stocks and bonds — may move in opposite directions. That's why diversifying your portfolio among different investment classes can be so important. Including several in your investment mix won't eliminate all risk, but it may help protect your portfolio against market volatility. As your financial partner, we will listen to your needs and show you how asset allocation can work for you. Please contact us today.
