Stands

Jackson added that a player entering the stands normally results in a suspension of double-digit games.

Davis' suspension started with Thursday night's home game against Detroit, and the players' union likely will file a grievance.

The Pistons were the home team the most recent time players went into the stands, when the Pacers' Ron Artest and Stephen Jackson fought with fans in November 2004.

An embarrassment for the NBA, the brawl led to criminal charges and lengthy suspensions for Artest, Jackson and Jermaine O'Neal.

"It's a totally different situation," said ex-Pacers star Reggie Miller, Davis' former teammate. "It was mayhem. He's coming to defense of a loved one. Ours was craziness."

The league was not nearly as harsh in this instance.

Wilmont

every night to complement senior forward Marco Killingsworth, who leads the Big Ten in scoring with a 20-point average.

"I was never frustrated," said Wilmont, who started the final seven games of last season but then found
