

First-person story of abuse is powerful

“Frontline” (9 p.m., WFYI, WTUU) presents “Hand of God,” a remarkably powerful and personal film about a victim of sexual abuse by a Catholic priest.

Kevin McDonough

Raised in a large and tight-knit Italian-American family in Salem, Mass., filmmaker Joe Cultrera uses home-movie footage and interviews to chronicle his brother Paul’s story of abuse, its effect on his personality and psyche, and Paul’s efforts to find out more about his abuser and fellow victims.

Given his past, Paul is surprisingly frank and at times even funny about his grim experiences. Both brothers have every reason to be outraged and angry, but this film is not defined by bitterness.

In fact, Cultrera puts special emphasis on the important and all-encompassing nature of the Catholic church in their family and neighborhood and how his elderly parents still cling to their faith.

“American Idol” (8 p.m., Fox, TV-G) returns for a sixth season with a cross-country tour of auditions in cities from Los Angeles to New York.

This painful, awkward and irresistible phase will last for a solid month, leading to the live Hollywood Round, beginning Feb. 13.

What can you say about a G-rated show that champions young people, dreams and talent? Put aside the cruel excesses of the sad auditions and the manufactured shenanigans between the judges, and “Idol” is pretty free of pettiness, backbiting and envy.

Sure, some of the songs are lame, and the product placements are cheesy, but that’s half the fun.

Again, with the exception of the inevitable off-screen scandal, “Idol” is mostly about showcasing kids on their best behavior, singing their hearts out while sharing a golden opportunity with their rivals and peers.

At the risk of sounding corny, let’s look at two basic facts: “Idol” is stupendously popular, and it reflects a generally upbeat side of human nature.

Do you think there’s a connection there?

Last year’s “Idol” reached an audience of 31 million viewers. Are programmers paying attention?

Tonight’s other highlights

- Scheduled on “Dateline” (8 p.m., NBC): murder in the Silver State.
- Luke and Christopher duke it out on “Gilmore Girls” (8 p.m., CW, TV-PG).

• A stabbing victim’s autopsy proves revealing on “Law & Order: Criminal Intent” (9 p.m., NBC, TV-14).

• A clean sweep on “The Unit” (9 p.m., CBS, TV-14, V).

• Scheduled on “48 Hours Mystery” (10 p.m., CBS): After a nationwide hunt for a missing college freshman, her best friend provides a key piece of evidence.

• Fin’s son reports a series of crimes in his dorm on “Law & Order: Special Victims Unit” (10 p.m., NBC, TV-14).

• Denny lands on a no-fly list on “Boston Legal” (10 p.m., ABC, TV-14).

• P.J. casts a skeptical eye on some old myths on the season finale of “My Boys” (10 p.m., TBS, TV-PG).

Cult choice

A pregnant police officer (Frances McDormand) unravels a series of homicides linked to a contrived kidnapping in the 1996 Coen brothers mystery “Fargo” (10 p.m., WE, TV-14, V), co-starring William H. Macy and Steve Buscemi.

Series notes

A body found in a country hideaway is that of an officer on “NCIS” (8 p.m., CBS, TV-PG, V) ... Tom Bergeron hosts two hours of “America’s Funniest Home Videos” (8 p.m., ABC) ... The return of fraternities brings apprehension to some on “Veronica Mars” (9 p.m., CW, TV-14, D, L, V).

Hudson takes home performance prize

HUDSON

Jennifer Hudson belted out some pop classics as the Palm Springs International Film Festival honored her performance in “Dreamgirls.” Hudson received the breakthrough performance prize at a gala Saturday after missing the festival’s award ceremony earlier this month.

“I never imagined any of this, I never thought about the outcome,” Hudson said. “All I wanted was the part. It never occurred to me I would be a part of such greatness.” Later, she launched into Aretha Franklin’s “(You Make Me Feel Like) A Natural Woman” and the Barry Manilow favorite “Weekend in New England,” the final song she sang before being voted off 2004’s “American Idol.” Hudson, 25, plays soulstress Effie White in “Dreamgirls,” about a singing group that rises to stardom in the 1960s.

Schwarzenegger limiting medication after injury

SCHWARZENEGGER

Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger is taking only “a little bit” of medication to ease constant, throbbing pain in his leg, he said in a television interview aired Sunday. The actor-turned-governor told ABC’s George Stephanopoulos in a taped interview that he’s mostly staying away from the medicine chest because he doesn’t want to contend with garbled speech or other possible side effects.

Schwarzenegger is expected to need two months to recover from surgery on his leg, which he fractured in a skiing accident last month.

“You only want to take a little bit of medication because otherwise, you know, you maybe forget what you want to say and start slurring because medication has an effect,” the Republican governor said on “This Week.”

LOS ANGELES
The dance flick “Stomp the Yard” was a step ahead of the competition at the box office, debuting as the No. 1 weekend movie with $22 million.

Starring Columbus Short as a raw but talented dancer at the center of a step competition between rival college fraternities, the Sony Screen Gems movie knocked off 20th Century Fox’s “Night at the Museum,” which had been the top film for three straight weekends.

“Night at the Museum” slipped to second place with $17.1 million, raising its total to $185.8 million, according to studio estimates Sunday.

The weekend’s other new movies had ho-hum debuts. Universal’s youth drama “Alpha Dog,” featuring Emile Hirsch, Ben Foster and Justin Timberlake in a tale of drugs, kidnapping and murder, opened at No. 7 with $6.1 million. Disney’s “Primeval,” a thriller with Dominic Purcell and Orlando Jones as part of a news crew pursuing a prolific serial killer, premiered at No. 8 with $6 million.

Expanding to nationwide release after a limited run in December to qualify for the Academy Awards, “Arthur and the Invisibles,” a live-action and animated family film from the Weinstein Co. and MGM, was No. 9 with $4.3 million.

Strong turnout by black moviegoers — who accounted for nearly two-thirds of the audience, according to Sony — pushed “Stomp the Yard” over the top. The movie followed in the footsteps of other black-themed films that debuted at No. 1 over previous Martin Luther King Jr. Day weekends, including “Glory Road” last year.

Columbus Short as DJ (far right) and Chris Brown as Duron (center) star in “Stomp the Yard.” The movie earned $22 million during the weekend.
