Take our advice. Before pressing the “send” button and telling your boss what you really think, you need to have another job lined up.

The Daily Journal can help. We won't write the scathing memo for you. We will, though, provide leads to better jobs with better pay, and maybe an understanding, caring supervisor.

Southside businesses call the Daily Journal first to advertise their job openings in print and online.

Chances are your old job will be listed in the Daily Journal. And, if you apologize, maybe your old boss will take you back.

Pick us up at Marsh or Village Pantry stores throughout the southside or call 736-2777 to subscribe.
