Trojans basketball team, Colts have much in common

As the Colts are getting ready for the Super Bowl, the Trojans are gearing up to win their sectional. The Colts play at 6 p.m. Sunday; we play at 6 p.m. Wednesday. The Colts play the Chicago Bears; we play the Franklin Central Flashes. The Colts are facing the Bears for the first time this year; we have lost to Franklin Central the past two years in sectional play. Indianapolis has never won a Super Bowl, and the Trojans have not won a sectional title for six seasons. The Colts struggled a little at the end of the season; the Trojans lost three of their past five regular-season games. Fans questioned whether the Colts could pull together to make a long postseason run, and the same is true with the Trojans' fans. Indianapolis made it to the Super Bowl, so the Trojans are bound to make a long postseason run, too. Now that the regular season is over, sectionals are the only thing on our minds. We completed our season on Thursday with a victory against Warren Central and a 14-6 record overall. Sectionals are next week, which means players, coaches and parents are all getting ready for the big games coming up. One pre-sectional tradition is to "decorate" coach Joe Lentz's house with toilet paper. He loved our decorating last weekend. Our annual sectional party will take place today at Lentz's house with all parents and players attending. The party starts promptly at 1:30 p.m., and the last player to walk in is the rotten egg, meaning the last player has to give a "motivational speech" in front of everyone. The party kicks off our long run into the postseason.

Barbaro's fight won't be forgotten

The Associated Press

Barbaro's brilliant racing career and eight-month fight for survival won't soon be forgotten. There's already great interest in just how good Barbaro's kid brother can be, an untested, unnamed yearling in Lexington, Ky. Barbaro funds, aimed at equine research and preventing deadly laminitis, have been started, and there's talk of a museum. "He's been so loved by the public, we think it's right to keep his memory alive," co-owner Gretchen Jackson said. Less than a week after their beloved Kentucky Derby winner was euthanized, Gretchen and Roy Jackson are taking steps to leave a lasting legacy for Barbaro. They're getting plenty of support, too. The Jacksons live in the middle of horse country outside Philadelphia and are exploring the possibility of a museum to honor Barbaro and other local horses, including Smarty Jones, Afleet Alex and steeplechase champion McDynamo. "I think that's a great possibility; the timing is right because we're just getting started in Pennsylvania," said Pat Chapman, who owned Smarty Jones and is a longtime friend of the Jacksons. "I'm totally with them." The Kentucky Derby Museum, just a few furlongs from Barbaro's greatest triumph at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., and the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington have said they would be honored to be the final resting place of Barbaro. "We're grateful for the offers," Gretchen Jackson said. "We're still pondering." The National Thoroughbred Racing Association unveiled the Barbaro Fund earlier this week, the latest effort to pull the racing industry together and raise money for equine research. The fund has a specific target: laminitis, the disease that struck three of Barbaro's feet and ultimately caused his death.

Minutes later, Armstrong and Tinsley hit consecutive 3-pointers to spark the winning run for Indiana. Granger's layup gave the Pacers an 89-76 lead with 1:30 remaining. The Pacers jumped to an early double-digit lead behind O'Neal's 13 points. Mike Dunleavy's layup gave Indiana a 24-12 advantage with 3 minutes left in the first quarter. The Lakers chipped away at the deficit in the second quarter, getting within 36-33 following Brian Cook's 3-pointer that capped a 7-0 run. The Pacers regained a 44-38 lead, but Bryant hit three free throws to end the first half. After falling behind by five points to begin the third quarter, the Lakers began to capitalize on a number of Indiana turnovers to take control.

Los Angeles tied it at 53 following Bryant's layup midway through the third quarter, and the Lakers took a 55-53 edge after Ronny Turiaf's powerful two-handed dunk on a fast break. Parker's dunk gave Los Angeles its biggest lead, 70-61.

Game notes

Pacers C Troy Murphy left in the first quarter after being hit in the face by a Lakers player while trying to grab a defensive rebound. Murphy broke his nose and did not return. ... O'Neal was picked as an Eastern Conference All-Star reserve Thursday. It will be his sixth career appearance at the All-Star game, setting a Pacers' NBA team record. Longtime Indiana G Reggie Miller was named to five All-Star teams. ... Lakers F Kwame Brown missed his 16th straight game with a left ankle sprain. ... The Lakers were playing their third game of an eight-game road trip, their longest since the 1989-90 season. They play at Washington today.
